"REDS" MUST GO.

Paterson To Drive Out The Anarchists.

Effort Will Be Made To Induce Them To Leave Quietly.

Vigilance Committee Is Formed To Attend To Them.

Paterson, N. J., June 20.—Mayor Hinchliffe seems tonight to have complete control of the situation, backed as he is by the entire peace controlling force of city and county and a part of the state militia. The presence of the soldiers has had a different effect on the "Reds" and they are not in evidence in the city. The troops will remain on duty all night and be relieved in the morning by the deputies. An organization has been completed, composed of fifty wealthy business men, to be known as the Paterson Vigilance committee, but its members and proceedings are not to be made public. Private detectives are already here to shadow the leading "Reds." Efforts will be made to induce the anarchists to leave the city quietly. If they will not go, then the committee has its own plan of action.

ON JULY 8.

Date Fixed When The Cornerstone Of The Masonic Orphans' Home Will Be Laid.

Manchester's new Masonic Home, which is being erected on Becht street by the members of the Masonic fraternity throughout the state, is to have its cornerstone laid on the afternoon of July 8. The exact hour has not yet been decided upon, but the program is about complete.

The stone will be laid by the most worshipful grand lodge of New Hampshire and there will be present, doubtless, a large and distinguished gathering of members of the craft from all parts of the state.

The program includes an address by the grand master, Col. Harry M. Cheney of Lebanon, and an oration by the Hon. George E. Dales of Wilton. There will be music by the Ariel quartet of Nashua.

BAD FIRE AT DOVER.

Belknap Congregational Church Building Damaged $3,000.

Dover, June 20.—A fire resulting in a property loss of $3,000, besides causing considerable damage to stock, broke out in the Belknap Congregational church here early today. The church proper occupies the upper portion of the building. Below it are two grocery stores, in both of which the stock was badly injured by smoke and water. The fire originated in the roof of the church, and was confined to the upper portion of the building. It is believed to be of incendiary origin.

THE CIRCUS IS COMING.

It Will Arrive in This City Early Tomorrow Morning.

Monday is circus day, and tomorrow we may look for the arrival in this city of the enormous united shows of Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers. The circus train will probably put in its appearance between two and three o'clock in the morning and the interesting process of unloading will begin as soon as it is fairly light.

The arrival of the circus is almost as momentous an event in the small boy's calendar as the performance itself, and this latter ranks only to the Fourth of July, and next above Christmas and Thanksgiving.

As a matter of fact, the unloading of a circus is an odd and curious spectacle, and one well worth losing one's early morning nap for once in a lifetime at least. One is almost ready to believe that he has suddenly been transported to the tropics, to see before sunrise of a not summer morning, a rather strange and foreign-looking man leading a ponderous elephant by a chain which looks to be about large enough to hold a good-sized St. Bernard dog in subjection. It is a peculiar thing about circus attaches, that they always have a picturesque and foreign appearance, even though they were born and bred in the backwoods of Maine.

When the lions and tigers, hyenas and panthers and such like beasts are brought out of their cages, the tropical illusion is largely somewhat because our conception of tropical life does not include the confinement of the lionly beasts of the forest and jungle in cages, the bars of which Samson himself could not have broken, or Sandow either for that matter, and this latter gentleman would certainly make Samson look like a lead thirty piece, or Canadian coinage, if the Israelitish champion should reappear upon earth. It is assumed, also, that if the reburial of Samson should occur, those enormous units shows would have him on their salary list within fifteen minutes of the occurrence of the interesting event.

But to return to circus day in Portsmouth. The task of unloading finally completed, the cars of the circus train will be left on the side tracks, and all of the paraphernalia, enormous as it is in quantity, will be freighted across the city in the circus' own teams and the animal cages will be hauled to the exhibition grounds by the circus' own horses. The elephants, camels, giraffes and other animals, which are neither very wild nor very dangerous except upon occasion, will be led through the streets by their keepers.

The great shows will exhibit their attractions this year in the Brackett field, off South street, and a great many people will go down there tomorrow to watch the setting up of the seats, the building of the rings and the other work incidental to the two performances which will be given Monday afternoon and evening.

The thieves, pickpockets and other crooks who always follow or precede the circus, will undoubtedly begin to arrive either this afternoon or this evening and it behooves everyone to be extremely careful that doors and windows are securely fastened, and that money and valuables carried upon the person are, if possible, placed in pockets not easily reached by a sneak thief or a pickpocket. The inside pocket of one's coat, with the coat closely buttoned is about the best place in which to carry one's money.

City Marshal Entwistle has issued the usual circulars and had them distributed about the city, calling attention to the expected visits of the crooks, and calling upon every one to exercise the greatest care, in order to avoid the loss of money or valuables.

One young man, a rather stalwart chap, says that when he sees a stranger hovering near him on circus day, whose general appearance he does not like, he proceeds to break his face, but the trouble with this plan, is that the man may not be a crook, and a fine in police court for unwarrantable assault may result, and all of us are not as stalwart as this young man, and with many of us the course of action pursued by him would not be practicable.

Crooks or not crooks, however, we are all glad to see the circus, and we shall all attend one of the performances, no matter how indifferent we may pretend to be to circus attractions. Most of us, too, will visit the side shows, eat peanuts, drink red lemonade, and remain to the concert.

MILITIA BOYS BACK.

The members of Company B arrived home from Concord early on Friday evening, after five days in camp. They came down on a special train over the Lake Shore railroad. All agree it was one of the most successful musters ever held.

GOSSIPY PARAGRAPHS.

Probably no class graduating from Portsmouth High school has ever listened to a finer address than that delivered by Prof. Adams at Music hall on Friday afternoon. It was just such an address as the newspapers would have been pleased to publish entire, but Prof. Adams speaks off-hand, not relying on notes even, and so could not use his remarks in manuscript. He referred very effectively to the debt of gratitude which Dartmouth college owes this old city by the sea, declaring that Benning Wentworth was really the chief mainstay of the institution for quite a period, nursing it through many trying vicissitudes. Prof. Adams also dealt, in a graceful figure of speech, with the first commencement day at the New Hampshire college, saying that those Portsmouth people who went to Hanover on that occasion had almost to blaze their way through the forests to get there. The path which they made then has ever since been kept open by a steady file of Portsmouth's sons, leaving the High school for the university.

Company B comes back from Concord with the satisfaction of knowing that in drill it more than held its own with the other companies of the state and that in Musician George Green it has by far the best bugler in the whole brigade.

The following suggestion from a member of the City Improvement society seems to me very pertinent: "Will persons who are not inclined or able to contribute to the funds of the society take care that waste paper is carefully placed in the barrels intended for it, so that it may not be blown out and about the streets? This would be of considerable help to the society, as well as a benefit to the community in general. Great batches of old paper lying around at the mercy of every wind are an indication of lamentable shiftlessness." I have read that in Japan, no matter how poor or lowly the family, the home and its surroundings are always kept scrupulously clean and tidy—the rear of the premises as well as the front.

I notice that the court off Ladd street, in the rear of the blocks fronting on Market street and the square, has finally been relieved of the rubbish which has beleaguered it so long, to the extreme annoyance of residents in the immediate vicinity. Is this achievement to be credited to the City Improvement society? It is most praiseworthy, anyway.

Advertising in the Chronicle certainly brings results. On the morning of Tuesday, June 9, this paper gave a choice front page position, with lots of space, to the announcement that the common council of the city of Portsmouth had lost two important bills—dropped them down a sewer, perhaps. This was read by about everybody in town (for it is well known that many who do not pay regularly for the Chronicle, make it a point every morning to steal a copy from some doorstep or borrow their neighbor's) and, lo, last Thursday evening there appeared in the council room both the missing bills.

Was there a more beautiful moon than that which showered its silver so lavishly over land and sea on Friday evening? I venture to say that in the opinion of the graduates of the High school there never was. Many of them seemed to find quite as much pleasure in strolling the streets by twos and threes as in joining the waltz in Philbrick hall. The glint of the moonlight on the fluffy gowns of these radiant young buds of Portsmouth gave a charm to Congress street and the square looked for only a few times during the year.

A number of days ago the Chronicle contained an item relative to a change in the runs of Conductors Neal and Gray of the Boston and Maine railroad, also the announcement that William N. Hodgson of this city had been sworn in as special deputy sheriff at Hampton Beach, for the summer season. I have followed these two bits of news with much interest as they have circulated from one neighborhood newspaper to another and was amused on Friday afternoon to see that they had finally reached a local evening paper. It beats the Dutch how some of these scraps do keep bobbing up in other dailies many days after their first appearance in print.

The individual who exists solely for the delight he gets from palming off upon newspapers the announcements of "fake" wedding engagements has been trying his hardest to trick some of us here in Portsmouth lately. Only last Wednesday I found on my desk a slip of paper upon which were couched, in poor handwriting with pencil, the names of a prominent young man and woman of this city, "the wedding to take place sometime in July." Of course the slip went into the rubbish crate. Happening soon afterward to meet the young man concerned, I told him about it. He would like nothing better than to get a firm clutch on the person responsible for the trick.

DOWN IN WALTER'S TOWN.

Down in Jersey City there has been an appropriation made of $5000 for band concerts. There are to be concerts every night in the week except Sunday for two months in all the parks of the city. They evidently believe in the helpfulness of music down there. It is a large appropriation, but it may be money well spent, for we do not know of any thing that caters to a larger class of people than does brass band music. One stipulation of the appropriation is the definite character of the program, which shall consist of four classical numbers, five popular airs, and one instrumental solo, the concert to open with "The Star Spangled Banner" and to close with "Lead, Kindly Light."

TUNING UP THE NAVY

UNCLE SAM is acting on the axiom "in time of peace prepare for war." The general board of the navy, of which Admiral Dewey is the head, has been studying the subject of war preparation and plans of campaign since its organization. The general scheme contemplates the co-operation of the army, navy, militia and light-house service.

Rear Admiral Cooper has been placed in charge of the work of preparation on the east coast of the country, while Rear Admiral Kempff has been assigned to similar duty on the Pacific. Another officer doubtless will be assigned to the gulf. These officers will inspect conditions in their districts and act under instructions from the general board.

In conjunction with the scheme of defense plans for the grandest naval maneuvers ever undertaken by the United States government have been made. These include a naval drill and mimic battles by the north Atlantic squadron this summer and naval maneuvers in the West Indies next winter, in which almost the entire navy will take part.

First it is proposed to have maneuvers of the army and navy with the object of defending the Long Island sound approach to New York from a supposed hostile fleet. This will take place during the summer cruise of the north Atlantic squadron. This squadron will be increased to fifteen war vessels, and it is the intention to have 10,000 troops, regulars and militia, participate in the maneuvers.

On one side, as the plan has been outlined by the navy department, there will be the battleships Kearsarge, Massachusetts and Indiana and the gunboats Marietta, Machias, Chinmat and Winslow. Opposed to these will be the battleships Illinois, Iowa and Alabama and the gunboats Dolphin, Eagle and one other. Rear Admiral Higginson, on the Olympia, will command one fleet, while Rear Admiral Coghlan, on the Brooklyn, will lead the other.

This sort of work President Roosevelt regards as of great benefit. He proposes to have the army and navy engage in maneuvers of this kind with a view of giving them more experience and training in warfare than they can get in any other way.

On a much more extensive scale will be the maneuvers in the Caribbean sea next winter, orders for which have been issued by the navy department.

REAR ADMIRAL HIGGINSON.

The fleet gathered there will be even more formidable than that which blockaded Cuba and destroyed Cervera's squadron. It will comprise the north Atlantic, south Atlantic and European squadrons, which are commanded respectively by Rear Admirals Higginson, Sumner and Crowninshield. This great fleet, which will comprise seven battleships, one armored cruiser, five protected cruisers, ten or more gunboats and training-ships, with probably the whole flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers, torpedo boats and submarine boats, may be commanded by Admiral Dewey. Even if he does not assume command he will undoubtedly be present to make a thorough inspection of the combined squadrons and to witness the operations.

In case Admiral Dewey should determine to witness the maneuvers merely as an inspector then Rear Admiral Higginson, by virtue of his position as senior officer, will be in supreme command. Rear Admiral Sumner will be second in command, Rear Admiral Crowninshield will rank next, and Rear Admiral Coghlan will be the fourth flag officer present.

The ships will gather in the vicinity of Culebra island, where the navy now maintains a marine camp, about the first of the year. This camp will be enlarged, and additional marines will be sent to the island. These marines will be useful to repel landing parties from the combined fleet. The drills will last about two months.

The commanders in chief of the three squadrons are given special orders to govern their respective commands. While proceeding to the rendezvous they are directed to hold drills with a view of inspiring healthy rivalry between gun crews, to encourage officers and men to invent appliances to quicken ammunition handling and the loading of guns and to pay special attention to gun pointing.

The naval bureaus of equipment, steam engineering, construction and ordnance have received special directions to see that the vessels of the great fleet have supplies of clothing and provisions and are in thorough repair in time for the maneuvers.

Throughout the two months' maneuvers of the combined squadrons great stress will be laid on the gun drills and target practice. There will be contests of skill between the various ships, with probably prizes for marksmanship. The men will be encouraged to better efforts, with the idea of maintaining the lead the United States now holds over all other nations in naval gunnery.

At these drills many other problems besides accuracy of fire are worked out. As important as either rapidity or accuracy is the question of ammunition supply, for however fast a gun may fire or however straight it may shoot these advantages may be lost if the shells and powder cannot be transferred from the magazine to the gun fast enough to maintain it continuously in action.

One reason for our proficiency in gunnery is the method of training the men, by which individual excellence is produced, as opposed to the system in vogue in some foreign countries, which makes the man behind the gun but an insignificant part of a machine largely replacing his own thinking apparatus.

As practice makes perfect, our present high standard in target practice is largely due to the frequent drills and liberal expenditure of ammunition. The yearly allowance for each gun has lately been increased, that for the various calibers now being 10, 12 and 13 inch guns, 0 rounds; 7 and 8 inch guns, 13 rounds; 4, 4.7, 5 and 6 inch guns, 18 rounds; 3 inch (14 pounder) guns, 30 rounds; 6 pounder guns, 72 rounds.

This represents the number of rounds with full size projectiles allotted to each gun in the service, but it is no measure of the practice obtained.

A comprehensive scheme of what is known as subcaliber practice has been arranged by which target shooting, closely simulating service conditions, may be carried on with big guns, but instead of firing away the large and expensive projectiles much smaller ones are used.

Secretary of the Navy Moody is determined that the sailor boys shall not become rusty through lack of training in the service, and his policy has the full approval of the president. It is said that he has been working on the plans ever since he succeeded Secretary Long.

A FILIPINO BEAUTY.

Sister of Sixto Lopez Now Sojourning in This Country.

One of the most interesting of the visitors from the Philippine Islands to this country is Senorita Clemencia Lopez, sister of Senor Sixto Lopez, who was long the private secretary of Aguinaldo.

Since her arrival in this country Senorita Lopez has petitioned the president for the release of three of her brothers, who were taken into custody by General Bell and confined on the island of Talin.

Senorita Lopez is a native of Balayan, in the province of Batangas, and is twenty-six years old. She is the eldest daughter of the family, which is a large one. Of the ten children born to her parents nine are still living, three daughters and six sons.

For some weeks the senorita has been living in Boston, as has also her brother Sixto. Another brother, Jose, is a student of architecture in the university at Newcastle-on-Tyne, in England, while Lorenzo, Cipriano and Manuel are in prison. At home her mother, aged and infirm, resides with her remaining children on the family estate. They were one of the wealthy native families of the islands.

Senorita Lopez is fairly well educated, having received the advantages of the convent schools at Manila. She speaks English to a small extent and is studying the language in order that she may become sufficiently familiar with it to converse readily.

She is possessed of more than usual intelligence and is enthusiastic and courageous in her undertakings. Her progressive and resolute spirit is shown by the fact that she is the only Filipino woman who has ever left her native islands alone. During her travels to the United States she visited her brother in England and also made short stops in France and Spain, where she was the guest of former school friends.

In appearance the senorita is petite. Her complexion is of the brunette type. The Japanese stamp of her features is unmistakable, but the eastern coloring and dark Spanish eyes make her face attractive and even beautiful.

KING OSCAR A POET.

Ruler of Sweden and Norway Author of a Book of Verse.

King Oscar of Sweden has just made his debut into French literary circles by writing a book of poems which has caused quite a sensation. The book was published in Paris and appeared under the auspices of the French poet Sully Prudhomme, who has written a charming poem dedicated to his majesty in the preface.

King Oscar has on previous occasions published some charming verse, for, unlike most European monarchs, he possesses ability as a writer. Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany is his only rival in a literary way.

The poems of his majesty are said to be full of charm and emotion and combine the mystic fascination of the north with the style and grace of the French race, from which his royal highness is descended.

King Oscar is said to have declared that he would rather be remembered as a poet than as king. In 1878 he was elected a corresponding member of the Frankfort Academy of Sciences on his poetical translation of Goethe's "Faust." His "Poems and Letters From My Journal," published in 1880, is but one of his several volumes of original poetry, and his translations are numerous. The king is now seventy-three years old.

FREMONT MEMORIAL

WASHINGTON MAY HAVE STATUE OF "THE PATHFINDER."

Only Memorial of the First Man to Raise the American Flag in California Is at Los Angeles—His Aged Widow Still Survives.

The many admirers of Major General John C. Fremont will be greatly disappointed if congress fails to pass the bill introduced by Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania appropriating $50,000 to erect a statue to the memory of "the Pathfinder" in the city of Washington.

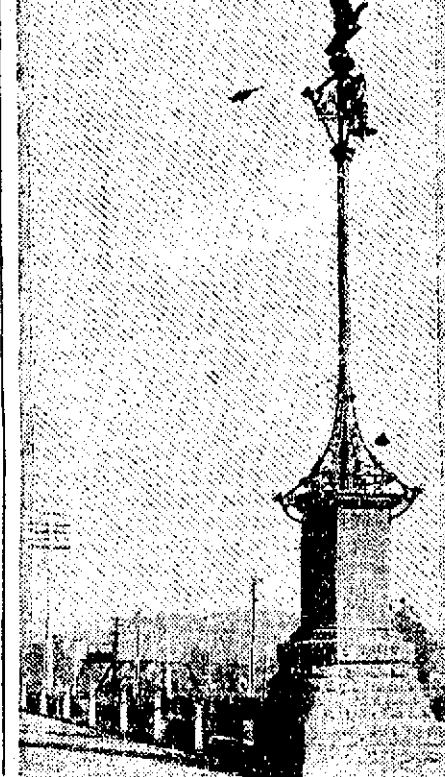

The monument project has been talked about for several years, and most of the newspapers of the country have at one time or another expressed themselves in favor of it. It is understood that President Roosevelt favors the measure. Behind the movement for a monument to General Fremont is a national organization known as the National Fremont association, with headquarters at Pittsburg. This organization has been active in the project and has urged congress to take action on the bill.

Los Angeles, long the home of General Fremont and still the home of his aged widow, contains the only memorial ever erected to the general's memory. It is a lofty shaft of metal on a granite base and adorns one of the squares of that beautiful city. From the top of the shaft depends an ornamental electric lamp of great power which illuminates the entire park.

This memorial was erected in 1896 by the citizens of Los Angeles, who raised $30,000 for the purpose of building the park and erecting the memorial.

General Fremont was a native of Georgia and was born in 1813. He secured California to the Union by raising the American flag there, and he signed the treaty for the same at Los Angeles Jan. 13, 1847. He served long and honorably as military governor of and as United States senator from that state. He was also a major general in the United States army.

General Fremont was the first presidential candidate of the Republican party, which was organized at Pittsburg Feb. 22, 1856. He was nominated at Philadelphia June 18 following on a platform in which "protection to American industry gives prosperity" was the principal plank.

There are many reasons why Washington should be selected as the appropriate place to perpetuate the memory of General Fremont. It was there that he began his career, and it was there that he married the reigning belle of the old regime—Miss Jessie Benton, daughter of Thomas A. Benton, who was for thirty years a member of the United States senate from Missouri. General Fremont died in New York city in 1890.

Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont at the age of seventy-eight is passing her declining years in the pretty Fremont cottage in Los Angeles. Jessie Benton married for love when she was but sixteen, and the man of her choice then was her partner through a long life and is now the idol of her recollection. General Fremont was at that time a lieutenant in the corps of topographical engineers and was assigned to assist in the geographical survey of the sources of the Mississippi. Soon after his marriage he commenced a series of explorations which led him eventually to the Pacific, and on this expedition his young wife accompanied him. Later he was placed at the head of the great expedition which was sent to explore the great northwest. In 1847, when the Mexican-Californians capitulated, he was the real representative of the government in power.

Mrs. Fremont was educated in the Georgetown convent. She has traveled much. She was presented at Queen Victoria's court when that famous sovereign was in the days of her youth. She was also a witness to the memorable entrance of Louis Napoleon into Paris.

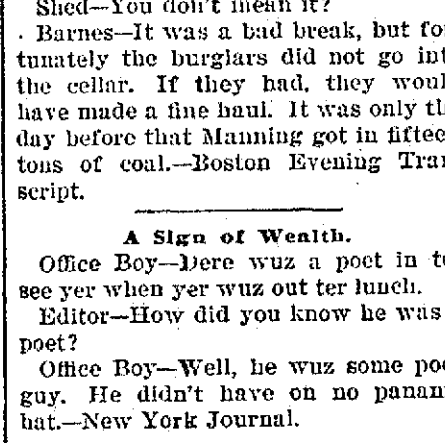

General Fremont was elected to the United States senate from the first California legislature. He made three trips of exploration in the region lying between the Mississippi and the Pacific and was largely instrumental in opening that vast country to settlers. His third expedition brought him to

NEW PORTO RICAN LEADER.

Head Movement For Complete Autonomy For the Island.

Rosendo Matienzo Cintron is the most prominent figure in Porto Rico politics at the present time. He is the recognized leader of the islanders in a new departure which has for its object the complete Americanization of the island.

They want the United States congress to so amend the Foraker law that Porto Rico shall have practically a territorial organization and be represented in the national congress by a delegate. Further, they want the executive council, the upper house of the island legislature, made an elective body and its complete separation from administrative functions. In short, the new party wants complete autonomy.

This position appeals to the people. It has always been the favorite doctrine of the Federal party, and now that an esteemed leader of the Republicans has unfurled the banner of complete autonomy thousands of the islanders are rushing to his standard. So emphatic has been this expression of the people that the Republican organization of the island has signified its purpose to fall in with this popular demand and urge an amendment to the Foraker law to change the upper house to an elective body.

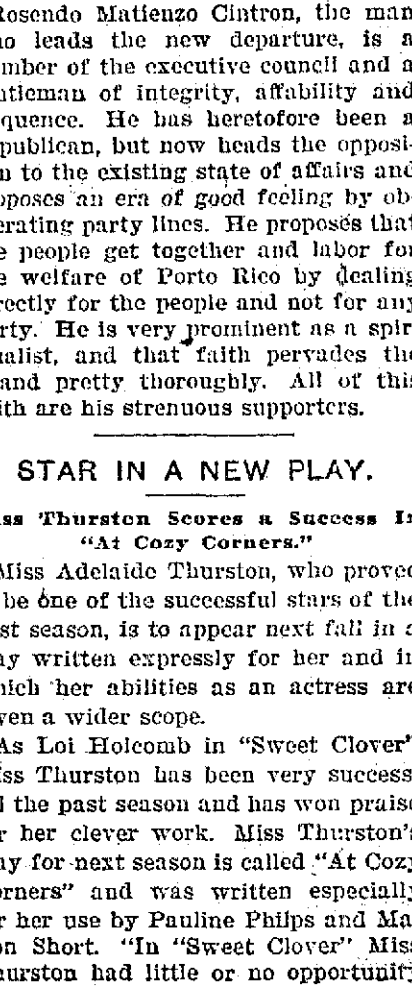

Rosendo Matienzo Cintron, the man who leads the new departure, is a member of the executive council and a gentleman of integrity, affability and eloquence. He has heretofore been a Republican, but now heads the opposition to the existing state of affairs and proposes an era of good feeling by obliterating party lines. He proposes that the people get together and labor for the welfare of Porto Rico by dealing directly for the people and not for any party. He is very prominent as a spiritualist, and that faith pervades the island pretty thoroughly. All of this faith are his strenuous supporters.

STAR IN A NEW PLAY.

Miss Thurston Scores a Success in "At Cozy Corners."

Miss Adelaide Thurston, who proved to be one of the successful stars of the past season, is to appear next fall in a play written expressly for her and in which her abilities as an actress are given a wider scope.

As Lol Holcomb in "Sweet Clover" Miss Thurston has been very successful the past season and has won praise for her clever work. Miss Thurston's play for next season is called "At Cozy Corners" and was written especially for her use by Pauline Philips and Marion Short. "In 'Sweet Clover' Miss Thurston had little or no opportunity to display her abilities as a comedian, a disadvantage which has been overcome in the new play.

"At Cozy Corners" has been given a trial during a brief spring season which closed a few weeks ago. The play was handsomely produced and was warmly received. It proved an admirable comedy drama, and Miss Thurston scored a flattering personal success.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds of Portsmouth Readers Know What It Means

The kidneys are overtaxed. Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains.

Backache, sideache, headache. Early symptoms of kidney ills. Urinary troubles, Diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Portsmouth citizen tells here a certain cure.

Mr. James Snow of No. 5 Daniel street, assistant cashier at Nickerson's says, "I was under the care of physicians, but their medicine did me no good. I took any quantity of advertised remedies, in vain, seeking for a cure. I had a tenderness and soreness over my kidneys, that made any sudden movement agony. Deafness in my head and that tired feeling haunted me. I wore more plasters than would fill a trunk and yet I did not take a whole box of Doan's Kidney Pills when the aching lameness was gone. I tried so many medicines, and have experienced so much suffering that I have no hesitation in saying that Doan's Kidney Pills are ahead of anything I have ever used, and if I am ever troubled again, and I may be, I know what to do."

ROUGH ON MARK TWAIN.

An Englishman's Appreciation of a Joke by Chauncey Depew.

Once upon a time Senator Depew and Mark Twain were fellow passengers on a trip across the ocean. One night a dinner was given, and Twain was called upon for a speech. He made a number of characteristically humorous remarks and then sat down amid applause. Mr. Depew was next called upon.

"Mr. Clemens and I exchanged speeches before dinner," he said, "and he has delivered mine. His is so bad that I won't disgrace him by repeating it." Then Mr. Depew sat down, while everybody laughed.

The next morning while Mr. Clemens was pacing the deck an Englishman came up to him.

"Mr. Clemens," he said, "I always thought that Mr. Depew was a smart man, but that speech of his which you delivered last night was certainly the worst I ever heard of."—Washington Post.

Notes Versus Pants.

An interesting illustration is related of a man in Philadelphia who desired to start in business for himself, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. He applied to a woolen house and got goods to the amount of $400. The salesman asked him what he manufactured.

"I make pants," he replied.

"How do you want to buy these goods?"

"The best way I can," was the answer.

"How will you pay for them?"

"Well, I give you my note for four months."

"Is your note good?"

The buyer looked around, winked to the salesman and put his finger on his nose. "My friend," he said, with the air of one who is about to impart a confidence, "if my note was good I would make notes, not pants."

The Man and His Message.

"Did you see that distinguished looking man who came down the aisle of the theater and whispered in Mrs. Giddypate's ear?"

"Yes, I saw him."

"He looked like a perfect stranger too."

"Guess he was."

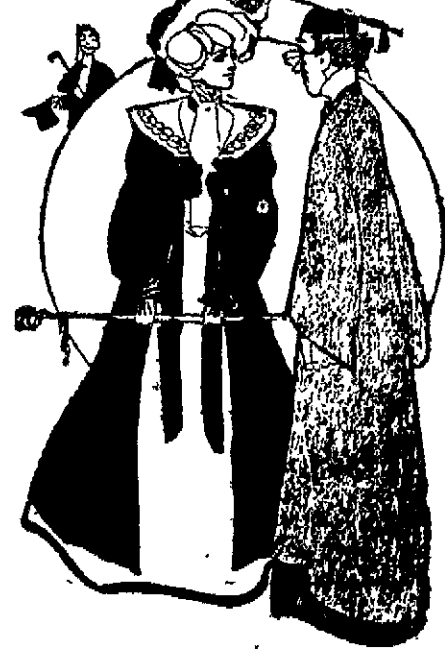

"It's astonishing the way that woman goes on. Could you hear what the man said?"

"Yes, I heard it."

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'Madam, please remove your hat.' It was the chief usher."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Professor—I don't know about letting you go to the theater with Mr. Smithers. Are you engaged to him?

Gwendolyn—Not yet. But if you'll let me go I will be by the time I get back.—New York World.

He Wouldn't Tell.

"Oh, Willie," exclaimed Willie's sister, "when did you buy your Panama hat?"

"Today," replied Willie proudly.

"How much did it cost?"

"Sister, it is very bad form to inquire the cost of a Panama hat."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Charming Summer Styles—A Raze For White-Beauty in Corsets.

Despite all the elaboration of fashion simplicity is the keynote of some of the most effective gowns. In foulards, for which there is now a great fancy, the model here shown is of charming style. The skirt is made over a separate foundation, the sides stitched down in a fold on to the front panel, forming a tunic, on to which a gathered bias flounce is set beneath a band of guipure. The bodice, which is perfectly plain at the back, fastens over slightly on the left side, giving an op-

A SIMPLE BUT CHARMING MODEL opportunity for the display of quality or valuable buttons. The large, round collar is made of tucked white silk edged with the applique insertion. Quite the latest note is struck in the sleeves, which are close fitting, ornamented with tucks at the top, falling out at the elbow into large puffs, which are finally set into deep cuffs of guipure.

The craze for white seems to be increasing. In linens, cambrics, muslins and cloths it reigns supreme. It is quite true that a frock is seldom left entirely white, being generally trimmed with deep cream or strong colored lace; but white is the fashion, and long may it last. After white the favorite color is a very bright green, and this has been used by milliners since the very beginning of spring. It is so becoming intermingled with navy blue that it is having a revival of popularity among smart women.

For hot afternoon wear, big weddings and receptions in the height of summer a transparent neck is pretty, but it is hardly good style for walking in the streets in the morning.

Velvet ribbon is much used as summer gown garniture. Embroideries are indispensable to tailors, whereas dress-makers are using quantities of chiffon and lace. Large collars and vests of embroideries and bands of tulle blend admirably with canvas cloth and hop-sack or even tweeds.

In corsets, as in all else appertaining to the beautiful, the individuality of each person must be considered. The straight fronted corset at its best is a very beautiful and hygienic construction, but avoid ill shaped imitations of the genuine article. Well made stays are now charming. What could be nicer for summer wear than an unlined batiste, lightly boned, without undue pressure anywhere? Instead of being, as in days not very long gone by, a hideous sort of armor, the corset of the hour is a dainty accessory to our lingerie.

Latest Riding Habit.

The long riding coat is no new thing, but perhaps the smartest and most becoming of its kind is the new swallow-tailed habit first brought out by a London tailor, which in its perfection of cut and style appeals to the careful dresser.

SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1902.

No less than eight male residents of Meriden, Conn., most of them men of means and good standing in the community, and one being a reputed millionaire, have committed suicide within eight weeks. One shot himself, another blew his head off with a dynamite cartridge, four poisoned themselves, and one hung himself in a cell at the police station, where he had been taken on complaint of his wife and mother-in-law, who said he had threatened to kill himself, and they were afraid he would do it. As no reason for any of these suicides has been shown, it is believed in Meriden that a suicide club exists there, and detectives have for several weeks been engaged in endeavoring to secure its members. Better let the club alone, if it exists, and let its silly members kill themselves if they want to. The departure of any number of men idiotic enough to join such a club and then abide by its rules would not lower the percentage of common sense in any community, as long as they kill nobody but themselves they do no harm.

The fine new building of the Tilden club in New York was dedicated on Thursday evening by a grand harmony meeting of prominent democratic leaders, or democrats who have been leaders and hope to be again, the ostensible object of the meeting being to get the democratic party back to the principles of that fine old expansionist and extreme high protectionist, Thomas Jefferson, of that sturdy defender of the flag and the army, Andrew Jackson, and that earnest advocate of honest money and ample preparation for national defense, Samuel J. Tilden. Among those in attendance were the last democratic president of the United States—and who will continue to hold that distinguished position as long as he lives—Hon. Grover Cleveland, and his former rival and opponent, Hon. David Bennett Hill, former governor of New York, both of whom made harmony speeches; the Tammany triumvir appointed by Croker to run the democratic party of New York city during his absence; leaders of the Greater New York democracy, who aided in the defeat of the Croker ticket at the late election; Van Wyck, Sheehan, Murphy and other notables, the company being a really remarkable gathering of politicians who have found pleasure in denouncing and knifing each other for years. But the most prominent figure of the love feast was the Hon. William J. Bryan, the apostle of the 47 cent dollar and late democratic candidate for the presidency; and he was conspicuous by not being there, though invited to be. Bryan is no dunderhead; he is sharp enough to see that the real intent of this "harmony" movement in the party is to stow him and his 47 cent dollar away somewhere in a pigeon hole with the cross of gold and crown of thorns, and he does not intend to be so stowed away if he can prevent it. Certainly he will not give the conspirators his aid.

Mr. Goodall, who wields the pitch-pine hammer in the common council room to the best of his ability, took occasion, immediately after he had rapped the meeting of last Thursday evening to order and before tackling any of the items of business awaiting consideration, to make a denial of a certain statement which appeared in the Herald of June 19. This statement was to the effect that during the special meeting of the council on the previous evening some of the members were smoking. As President Goodall has taken the pains to call further attention to this matter, the Herald finds it fitting to reassert that there was smoking in the council room during the meeting in question. If there hadn't been, what earthly reason would the Herald have had for saying that there was? Not only that, but (the whole truth might as well come out) the cigars from which the smoke spirals ascended so lazily were bad—very, very bad—more like a mixture of tarred rope and Chinese joss sticks—quite unworthy to be puffed by the official solons of a thrifty municipality of Portsmouth's size. The real trouble is this: the Herald reports the meetings of the Portsmouth city government as they are—not as they should be, might be or have been. That is the duty of a newspaper that is a newspaper, and not an imitation. The Herald does not send a reporter into the aldermanic chamber or the council room with smoked glasses on or cotton stuffed in his ears. He goes there to see and hear all that is done and said. And when he says that a councilman was smoking during a meeting, the public in general will prefer to take his word for it. Whatever other local papers may see fit to present in their reports of these meetings cuts no figure with the Herald. This paper gets its own news and serves it up in its own way, always trying to be as correct as possible. In other words, we stand on our own feet and use our own brains.

The latest trouble at Paterson, N. J., commands the most serious attention from the national as well as the local authorities. It is no ordinary labor disturbance. It is the type of the most incendiary kind of anarchism, the red agitators utilizing a minor dispute between employers and workers to precipitate a reign of terror. The strikers were working out their own affair peacefully when it was taken out of their hands by two notorious anarchists, one of them editor of a paper worse in its incendiaryism than John Most's "Freiheit," the other a professional organizer of anarchist groups. Neither is a milk worker, but they took charge of an open-air meeting held in the morning, and by radical methods swung the mob into line for riot. The situation calls, indeed, for radical methods. The immediate arrest of the agitators who led the mob is demanded. There can be no safety, especially in a city harboring several thousand ignorant foreigners, if such people are allowed freely to exploit their murderous doctrines. There is no assurance that they will not make trouble even when there is no labor dispute on which to hang their vile demands for resistance to the laws. The man MacQueen, the anarchist-editor who precipitated the riot, is a public menace, not only to Paterson, but to the whole country. He appears to be as dangerous as Emma Goldman or Most or any of the other wretches who seek the subversion of government. At a meeting held in New York city May 5 last, specifically called for the purpose of permitting the anarchists to express their sympathy for John Most in his conviction, MacQueen delivered a violent harangue, in the course of which he said: "To hell with the laws of America! Down with the government! We are despised because we are not creeps, crawlers, pigs groveling in the dust—because we despise the laws." This is no mere state matter. It demands national attention and action. Last September the president was killed by a man who drew his inspiration from such criminals as this man MacQueen. Public sentiment then favored the expulsion from the country of all professed anarchists. Congress has seen fit to pass only a law which provides the death penalty for the assassination or attempted assassination of federal officers. As yet no statute is provided which broadens the powers of the national authorities. John Most has been sent to prison for reprinting an incendiary, murder-inciting editorial in his vile sheet. No punishment was even proposed when MacQueen uttered the cry "Down with the government" in New York in May, although he was placed technically under arrest. Is the old let-them-alone policy to continue until another president is shot or some great disorder is precipitated among the people by those infamous agitators? The record of their misdeeds has grown long enough to arouse the national sentiment to the point of action. Washington Star.

CLIPPINGS.

The country is waiting patiently for an eloquent speech from Senator Hoar excusing his oppressed Filipino friends who tortured and killed five captive American soldiers. The senator, of course, will say they have qualified to establish an enlightened self-government.—Nashua Press.

It does not greatly matter whether the Nicaragua or the Panama route is chosen so long as it is chosen in good faith. What the people of the United States object to is having men vote for a certain route not because it is the best, but because it is the worst, and because the selection of it is likely to defeat or indefinitely delay the whole canal enterprise.—New York Tribune.

We love to hear a man inveighing against the extravagance of American women and puffing a forty cent cigar between his puffs of eloquence and sarcasm. We love to hear a man denouncing hotly the vanity of women, and then to watch him peeping furtively into every mirror along Broadway and to know that he is secretly admiring his own confounded ugly mug.—New York Sun.

A young girl asked Captain Hobson to kiss her, but he politely declined.—Connecticut dispatch.

Few men care to kiss the girl who asks. Indeed! Who gave the Globe man authority to speak for all mankind on such a theme? De gustibus non est disputandum. It all depends on the girl and the circumstances—and the man! It has been understood that Hobson, for instance, made his reputation by kissing girls who asked; and he did it so politely.—Kennebunk Journal.

Paterson, New Jersey, again claims sympathy because of the manner in which it is being unwillingly advertised as headquarters for anarchists.

It was in the blood. The prize for punctuality is awarded at Gorton to young Theodore Roosevelt; and punctuality is only another word for strenuousness.

The preparations for the coronation might easily be made to overshadow the king with trivial occupations. It is now hinted that he is not sick, but playing hooky.

ON THE DIAMOND.

Chicago has a good long lead in the American league.

Bernhard is not pitching the best of ball for Cleveland.

The Boston National league team is a poor drawing card at home.

Despite several defeats, Manchester still holds a safe lead in the New England league.

Merle Adkins, the Beloit college pitcher, has joined the Boston American team, but has not yet been tried in the box.

George Magoon, the East Rochester ball player with Cincinnati, has been fielding and hitting in his old time form of late.

The Worcester team is playing great ball. In less than a month it has advanced from last place to second in the Eastern league.

According to report Manager Doe of the Dover team was very indignant the other day when Miron, his cast-off pitcher, appeared in the box for Nashua and won a game in opposition to Towne, Doe's pet from Bates college.

Deininger was forced to retire from his first game with the Haverhill team. Manchester batted the South Boston boy out of the box, but Pitcher Smith went in and pulled out the game for Haverhill. John Smith of Manchester claims that Deininger is not eligible to pitch for Haverhill, as he has not been released by the Boston Americans, but has simply been farmed out.

Five little minutes are all the time Perry Davis' Painkiller needs to stop a stomach-ache, even when it is sharp enough to make a strong man groan. Don't be fooled by imitations. 25c. and 50c.

Hydrogen a Compound.

Scientists now find the atom a compound, and they are studying its thousandth part. Professor Pickering of Harvard, as the result of an intricate study of the spectrum of lightning flashes, has come to believe that hydrogen, instead of being a simple element, is made up of at least three components. This and other recent discoveries lends new probability to the old theory that the chemical elements are not fundamental, but that they themselves are made up of various primary simples combined in their different proportions.

Wind as a Destroyer.

Dr. A. A. Julien recently brought before the New York Academy of Sciences evidence to show that the ravages wrought upon sea bluffs during great storms are often due to the wind as much as to the ocean waves. Sand and salt spray driven for hours before a violent wind act like a gigantic sand blast, eating away with surprising rapidity the layers of gravel and sand of which many projecting headlands are composed. The surfaces of bodies exposed to such a wind are soon pitted.

Some Cork Statistics.

The production of cork in the world, estimated at 1,000 metric tons (a metric ton equals 2,204 pounds avoirdupois), is confined to Portugal, Spain, France, Italy and north Africa (Tunis, Algeria and Morocco). The area of French forests, including those in north Africa, really producing cork is more than one half of the total extent of cork forests. These forests are composed mainly of cork trees, intermixed with pines and evergreen oaks. The demand for cork is increasing from day to day.
